“Believing there is a bridge from where you are to where you want to go is 99% of the battle. The other 1% is to cross it.” — R.R. Norton

With 25 years of state and federal litigation and dispute resolution experience, Amy Coopman is skilled at helping parties build bridges to resolve disputes.

Amy is a mediator who instills immediate trust and confidence in the mediation process. She can assist parties in mediating a wide variety of civil disputes, individual, class and qui tam actions, including Employment, Education, Business, Personal Injury and Property disputes.

Amy has a track record of national leadership on employment law issues, and she developed a wide range of experience on the insurance and defense side of personal injury and business matters while working for 15 years at a prominent Kansas City law firm that represents individuals, businesses and insurance companies in complex litigation throughout the United States. Amy also enjoys mediating challenging education and non-profit philanthropy disputes.

Amy is firmly committed to guiding the parties to a successful resolution. Her words and actions show respect for all parties, representatives and attorneys involved in the mediation. They trust her, and as a result, trust themselves to achieve favorable outcomes, even when the stakes are high, the matter is complex, and the parties appear unyielding. Amy is professional, patient and persistent, and these qualities result in a high rate of mediation success.
